World Book Day - NEXT FRIDAY

It's nearly time for this year's World Book Day, an annual celebration of reading taking place in schools around the globe. As always, we'll be taking part with a day of exciting activities in school. This year's theme is "Read Your Way", with a goal of encouraging every child to enjoy reading, in whatever way they choose.

Dressing Up

To coincide with the theme of choice, what you wear on the day is up to you. You can either:

- Come in wearing pyjamas
- Come in dressed as a book character of your choice

Every year, there is a brilliant new range of children's books produced to coincide with World Book Day, each available for just £1. I'm pleased to say that we've once again teamed up with our local branch of Waterstones this year to set up a 'pop-up book shop', meaning pupils will be able to exchange their World Book Day voucher for their chosen book here at school on the day. This will ensure that every single pupil gets to exchange their voucher and take home a book of their very own to keep.

This Week

On Wednesday, six of our Year 5 pupils walked in the rain to the Westgate Centre to undertake their Bronze Ambassador training. These sports leaders aim to work with Mr Neaves and Mrs Dutton to help increase participation in sport at breaktimes and after school clubs, to promote "The Spirit of the Games" values, to be ambassadors and role models for PE and school sport and to do things such as lead warm up activities in PE lessons.

The children undertook challenges, were trained in how to lead warm ups, and were then split up into mixed school teams to do a series of activities.

We were delighted to welcome our tame Historian, Paul Ullson, back to JYS and on Thursday morning he was working with our Year 3s. They learned the story of stone, iron and bronze ages, and how the people lived in these periods. The children increased their knowledge about the stone aged people being nomadic, the iron age people being farmers and the bronze aged people being warriors! They finished the morning being "Time Detectives", making historical observations as they explored some amazing artefacts that had been brought in.

House Points

Children earn house points for different things throughout the week, and here are this week's results:
